DONOR SPOTLIGHT: “ALL I CAN AFFORD...”

The majority of our funds come from generous individuals. Every gift, big and small, matters. This spring, we received a $3 donation along with a small note that said this: “I know how it feels to be left confused, numb, and heavy hearted by the way events in life can kick us around. I’m hopeful that this little donation (all I can afford right now) will help in the care of someone in order to feel strengthened, seen, heard, believed, and safe. And most importantly – loved.”

OUR APPROACH TO SURVIVOR CARE...

- provides a space of safety.
- believes freedom from trafficking and exploitation isn’t an event, but a journey.
- journeys with survivors over the long haul, and our commitment goes beyond childhood.
- prioritizes healthy integration into community.
- offers holistic care, addressing the biological, psychological, social, financial, and spiritual impacts of victimization.
- collaborates with existing local resources, sharing information and partnering to ensure wraparound care.
- strives to see survivors become self-sufficient, flourishing adults, free from revictimization or dependency.

WE DON’T TAKE A “ONE-SIZE-FITS-ALL” APPROACH TO ANY CHILD.

We listen to their needs and desires. We shape programs to consider diverse vulnerabilities and cultural backgrounds. While many factors are different for each location, look to the right to see the things that are similar in all our global Survivor Care work.

WHAT IS A RAPID RESPONSE MEETING?
In US Survivor Care, our Rapid Response meetings are designed for youth who are at very high-risk or suspected of being trafficked. A Rapid Response meeting takes place in a one-on-one setting, providing youth with critical information and safety planning related to child sex trafficking, internet safety, grooming, and recruitment. Each youth is given a Rapid Response backpack filled with a range of items youth and service providers have identified as being critical for this population. Most youth who receive Rapid Responses are referred for follow-up care, including some who move into Love146’s Long-Term Services for survivors.

A CHILD WHO GOT THE NEWS HER TRAFFICKER WOULD BE BEHIND BARS FOR LIFE.

Maya (not her real name) came into our care 6 years ago from a horrific situation. When we say “survivor” we mean a lot of things. But sometimes the we use the word literally because, heartbreakingly, some children don’t make it out alive.

Maya made it out alive. About her perpetrator, Maya said: “I hope he rots in jail. He will go to the devil. He will never do to other children what he did to us.” She struggles sometimes with the impact of what she’s lived through. Still, she loves playing outside and doing ballet. She plays the guitar and dreams of becoming a famous singer.
WITH LAURA*, ONE YEAR LATER

We recently had a pretty big celebration: Laura* has been with us one year. After surviving being trafficked into the UK, this was a celebration of milestones. First birthday party. First guitar lessons. Here is what her carer shared, “I’m not going to lie, there have been times that have been incredibly difficult for both her and us, but we are in awe of her courage and grateful that she has put her trust in us. We feel honored to have her as a member of our family.”

OUR APPROACH TO PREVENTION EDUCATION...

- Moves beyond traditional awareness, facilitating skill building to decrease vulnerability.
- Considers all genders as potential victims and perpetrators, and provides activities for co-ed, male, female, and/or LGBTQ groups.
- Is research-based and grounded in best practices in the field of prevention education.
- Is designed for schools, child welfare, and juvenile justice agencies, and other community settings.
- Integrates a holistic view by focusing on individual strengths and personal and societal pressures that create or increase vulnerabilities.

A NOTE OF CONTEXT: As of 2017, Love146 has done prevention work in Africa & the United States. Our Prevention Education in the US is longer established, having begun in 2010. These points above reflect our values, and accurately reflect our work in the US. Our work in Africa is in its pilot stage and will continue to deepen and grow through the investment of our financial and programmatic partners.
26,658 youth have been reached by Prevention and Community Education in the United States.
Our Prevention team is now reaching more vulnerable youth in Texas — specifically, those involved in the child welfare and juvenile justice systems, living in poverty, and facing food insecurity (plus other risk factors). This outreach comes thanks to a grant from the Office of Gov. Greg Abbott’s Child Sex Trafficking Team. We’ll be partnering with the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services, the Texas Alliance for Children and Family Services, and others to do more direct implementation with youth, and scale the program by training facilitators across the state to implement our Not a Number curriculum.
Recently in Madagascar, graduate students in occupational therapy at the University of Antananarivo were trained to use the My Body is Mine flip chart. After the initial implementations, the grad students returned to the same primary school classrooms. The children remembered all the key messages. To follow-up further on their learning and retention, they shared more scenarios with the children and asked what was wrong and why. The children responded with clear understanding, saying things like, “You shouldn’t go back to that man’s house, he will steal you.” and “Safety is her right, so when she told her mom, her mom shouldn’t have dismissed her.”

While several organizations are implementing our My Body is Mine flipchart, these partners have been critical in training and leading in bringing this program to their regions.

NEW RESOURCES & A CAMPAIGN FOR NATIONAL PREVENTION MONTH

During Trafficking Prevention Month in January, Love146 launched a campaign targeting those raising kids to show how they can have an impact in preventing exploitation. In addition to an in-depth PDF guide, we produced a 2 minute video called “Love Listens,” raising awareness about child trafficking & focusing on having meaningful communications with our children. The video was seen by more than 57,000 viewers on social media. We also distilled the central message into a 30-second PSA, which aired on ABC and Fox affiliates in Texas and Connecticut, the CW station in Connecticut, and Tribune cable’s Me TV and Antenna TV.

The online sexual exploitation of children is a huge and growing issue in the Philippines, and many of the children in our care have been victimized in cybersex trafficking. The US State Department and the government of the Philippines are doing something about it. They’ve formed the U.S.-Philippines Child Protection Compact Partnership, providing funding to groups including The Salvation Army, the International Justice Mission, World Vision, and World Hope International. The children in our safe homes are now partially supported through a sub-grant from the Salvation Army. This grant helps facilitate a new level of collaborative work between these great partners, and is also an important recognition of the work we’re doing caring for children.
Ending child trafficking and exploitation cannot be done by one group. We are effective because we specialize and partner with others. These are just a few of the many organizations, agencies, coalitions & committees Love146 is collaborating with.
In our Prevention Education, we lead youth in understanding their own vulnerabilities. In one exercise, youth name the negative labels that have been placed on them, and also how they would want to be known. These are reflections from teens in Madagascar.
No identifiable children pictured in this piece are known to be exploited, and names of those affected throughout this booklet have been changed for protection and privacy.

Love146 is one of only a few hundred organizations that has met all 20 standards of charity accountability set by the Better Business Bureau.
