Impact Report
DATA AS OF DECEMBER 31ST, 2019

TO DATE, 57,429 CHILDREN REACHED BY THE WORK OF LOVE146.
Water splashes in the newly installed pool in our safe home in the Philippines. In a region where the daily high temperature is 85°F or above year round, the pool was a welcome addition to the daily joy of childhood in our safehome. As one six-year-old shared, “I am happy because I learned to swim with Love146! At first, it was hard to swim, but in the end I was able to learn.”
OUR VISION:
THE END OF CHILD TRAFFICKING AND EXPLOITATION. Nothing less

LOVE146

2. Protect children through the provision of intervention and support to survivors.

A MESSAGE FROM A NEW YEAR’S DONOR

“This year I had a New Year’s Eve party and wanted to do a charity version of a White Elephant party. Instead of giving to one another, I wanted us to give to an organization. I asked everyone to bring information on an organization they would like to donate to in an unmarked envelope, along with $10. Love146 won us all over and was ‘stolen’ (aka voted for) in the game at least 7 times among 9 people. Your organization touched us all and we are happy to be giving to you in the New Year!”

OUR APPROACH TO SURVIVOR CARE...

- provides a space of safety.
- believes freedom from trafficking and exploitation isn’t an event, but a journey.
- journeys with survivors over the long haul, and our commitment goes beyond childhood.
- prioritizes healthy integration into community.
- offers holistic care, addressing the biological, psychological, social, financial, and spiritual impacts of victimization.
- collaborates with existing local resources, sharing information and partnering to ensure wraparound care.
- strives to see survivors become self-sufficient, flourishing adults, free from revictimization or dependency.

WE DON’T TAKE A “ONE-SIZE-FITS-ALL” APPROACH TO ANY CHILD.

We listen to their needs and desires. We shape programs to consider diverse vulnerabilities and cultural backgrounds. While many factors are different for each location, look to the right to see the things that are similar in all our global Survivor Care work.

LOVE146 IN THE JOURNAL OF CHILD ABUSE & NEGLECT

A detailed write-up of Love146’s Survivor Care program was featured last August in the journal of Child Abuse & Neglect’s special focus on child trafficking and health. The journal was sharing information “intended to raise awareness of innovative counter-trafficking strategies emerging worldwide.” The Love146 paper, specifically, was published to “detail the successes, challenges, and lessons learned... in facilitating United States survivor access to services that can improve medical and mental health outcomes.”
513 youth have received a Rapid Response meeting.

612 Rapid Response backpacks have been distributed to youth confirmed or at risk of trafficking, and to other youth-serving organizations.

SURVIVOR CARE IN THE US HAS REACHED OVER 500 CHILDREN

We’ve now supported 500 children with our Survivor Care and have shown up when it was needed most. We just did our 500th Rapid Response, a one-hour intervention with youth who are at high risk of trafficking or are suspected to be victims. We listen, give resources, help the youth realize it’s not their fault, and talk about how to find safety and support. Afterwards, we make suggestions to their caregivers and social workers about follow up. Love146 also provides long-term holistic Survivor Care in the US, journeying with survivors for many months. Some youth who receive a Rapid Response go on to get that level of care, and every youth in our long-term care began with a Rapid Response.

SURVIVOR SPOTLIGHT: GABI

At 9 years old, Gabi* was being abused in front of a webcam. It was a heartbreaking reality, and the odds were stacked against her. She came to Love146, and your support meant she had a fighting chance... and wow did she take it. She enrolled in an alternative school to catch up. She continued working through immense trauma. She went on a hike for the first time in her life. She participated in her perpetrators being brought to justice. Today, she’s about to graduate with a bachelor’s degree in Information Systems... and dreams to go back and get a Masters of Social Work.

SURVIVOR SPOTLIGHT: THANH

Thanh* was trafficked to the UK 2 years ago. She was safeguarded by a Love146 UK specialist carer. At age 18, she moved into a Love146 specialist supported accommodation with wrap around support. Thanh continued to flourish. Her goal is to go to University and travel. She passed her exams at college and started a course that would lead her to realize her goal of going to university. Love146 works in the UK to ensure that vulnerable exploited young people aren’t alone. That they have a guardian who will make sure their fundamental rights – and happiness – are fulfilled.

OUR APPROACH TO PREVENTION EDUCATION...

- Moves beyond traditional awareness, facilitating skill building to decrease vulnerability.
- Considers all genders as potential victims and perpetrators, and provides activities for co-ed, male, female, and/or LGBTQ groups.
- Is research-based and grounded in best practices in the field of prevention education.
- Is designed for schools, child welfare, and juvenile justice agencies, and other community settings.
- Integrates a holistic view by focusing on individual strengths and personal and societal pressures that create or increase vulnerabilities.

A NOTE OF CONTEXT:
As of 2017, Love146 has done prevention work in Africa & the United States. Our Prevention Education in the US is longer established, having begun in 2010. These points above reflect our values, and accurately reflect our work in the US. Our work in Africa is in its pilot stage and will continue to deepen and grow through the investment of our financial and programmatic partners.

"Why prevention education?" That was the topic at a keynote speech recently that our President & Co-founder Rob Morris gave to the National Roundtable on Safeguarding Children and Prevention Education, hosted by the McCain Institute and the Department of Health and Human Services. Rob shared, “We have to be thoughtful because we want our solutions to be effective and sustainable... We deal daily with the tension that exists between thinking through solutions and the knowledge that children are being exploited and trafficked every day. That’s what makes prevention so difficult, because it takes time.”
COLLABORATION WITH GRADUATE STUDENTS IN MADAGASCAR’S CAPITAL

Recently, graduate students at the University of Antananarivo were trained to use the “My Body is Mine” flipchart, and presented it in primary schools. When the grad students returned to the classes, the children remembered its key messages. To follow-up on their retention, the grad students shared more scenarios and asked what was wrong and why. Children responded with clear understanding, saying things like, “You shouldn’t go back to that man’s house, he will steal you.” and “Safety is her right, so when she told her mom, her mom shouldn’t have dismissed her.”

While several organizations are implementing our “My Body is Mine” flipchart, these partners have been critical in training and leading in bringing this program to their regions.

4 key messages are reinforced through the flipchart: I am valuable and so are you! Safety is my right! My body belongs to me! I can get help!

While several organizations are implementing our “My Body is Mine” flipchart, these partners have been critical in training and leading in bringing this program to their regions.

"I DON'T THINK I EVER THOUGHT TO LOOK AT IT THAT WAY. IF SOMEONE SKETCHY CAN SPOT HER VULNERABILITIES, I SURE BETTER BE ABLE TO AS WELL. I CAN HELP HER BEFORE THEY HURT HER."

— A caregiver reached by our US Survivor Care Program
A SNAPSHOT OF OUR
COALITIONS, COMMITTEES, AND PROGRAMMATIC COLLABORATORS

Ending child trafficking and exploitation cannot be done by one group. We are effective because we specialize and partner with others. These are just a few of the many organizations, agencies, coalitions & committees Love146 is collaborating with.
“Love146 has been an incredible partner. Love146’s preventative efforts on trafficking will never capture how wide their true impact is — not only do they work to prevent this heinous crime but they also provide rehabilitative services after someone has experienced the horrors of trafficking.”

— SYLVESTER TURNER
Mayor of Houston, Texas

“I’m a big supporter of Love146 because of their commitment to care for survivors and their holistic approach to fighting child sex trafficking. By protecting our youth, they are protecting our future. We will do anything to help create a future where children are safe. This is our radical mission. This is our purpose. We are just beginning!”

— MICHELLE PHAN
Entrepreneur featured in Forbes’ “30 Under 30” and Time magazine’s “Women Who are Changing the World”

“[In supporting Love146], what you’re doing is giving the foot soldiers in one of the world’s most important battles a chance to prevail and letting more children be like your children. We can make a world of progress, but... it cannot be done without people like you to put people like Love146 in positions where they can save these children. All the efforts that governments make in the world cannot replace the committed compassionate citizen of the world who believes every child deserves a future.”

— PRESIDENT BILL CLINTON
42nd President of the United States
“Love146 helped me stand up again, they are like my family that fights for me. Because of Love146, I have started in my new life. I see a hope for my future and other children like me.”

— A 17-YEAR-OLD IN OUR SURVIVOR CARE
No identifiable children pictured in this piece are known to be exploited, and names of those affected throughout this booklet have been changed for protection and privacy.
